United Nations Decade of International Law: progress in the action dedicated to the 1999 centennial of the first International Peace Conference and to the closing of the United Nations Decade of International Law

Netherlands and Russian Federation: draft resolution

Action dedicated to the 1999 centennial of the first International Peace Conference and to the closing of the United Nations Decade of International Law

The General Assembly,

Reaffirming once again the commitment of the United Nations and its Member States, as well as the States parties to the Statute of the International Court of Justice, to the goals of the United Nations Decade of International Law, expressed by the General Assembly in resolutions under that item of its agenda,[1]

Mindful of the long and well-established tradition of progressive development and codification of international law, marked by the first and the second International Peace Conference, held at The Hague in 1899 and 1907 respectively,

Recalling that the third International Peace Conference, scheduled to be held at The Hague in 1915, was not held because of the outbreak of the First World War the previous year,

Recalling also the proposal by the Russian Federation for a third international peace conference with a view to considering international law and order in the post-cold-war world at the threshold of the twenty-first century, referred to in General Assembly resolution 51/159 of 16 December 1996, and the initiatives undertaken by the Russian Federation and the Kingdom of the Netherlands with regard to the commemoration of the first International Peace Conference,

[1] Notably resolution 44/23, 51/157 and 52/153.

98-34985 (E) 121198

Noting with satisfaction that the realization the programme of action dedicated to the centennial of the first International Peace Conference, presented by the Netherlands and the Russian Federation,[2] is consistent with the goals of the United Nations Decade of International Law,

Noting in this respect that meetings of the Friends of 1999, held at The Hague, at Moscow and in New York in 1997 and 1998, further contributed to the substantive content of the programme of action,

Noting also the preliminary reports on the themes of the centennial of the first International Peace Conference,

Expressing its gratitude to the rapporteurs and all organizations, groups and individuals who contributed to the discussion of the centennial themes,

Bearing in mind the progress report and the agenda of the commemorative meetings to be held at The Hague and St. Petersburg,[3]

Noting that the conclusions of action pertaining to the centennial of the first International Peace Conference will be submitted to the General Assembly for consideration at the closing of the Decade of International Law,

Noting also that the programme of action does not entail budgetary implications for the United Nations,

1. Welcomes the progress made in realization of the programme of action, presented by the Governments of the Netherlands and the Russian Federation,[4] which aims at contributing to the further development of the themes of the first and the second International Peace Conference and could be regarded as a third international peace conference;

2. Encourages:

(a) The Governments of the Russian Federation and the Netherlands to continue with the implementation of the programme of action;

(b) All States to participate in the activities set out in the programme of action, as well as to initiate such activities and to coordinate their efforts in this respect at the global level, as well as at the regional and national levels;

(c) All States to take appropriate measures to ensure universal participation in the activities pursuant to the programme of action, with special consideration for the participation of representatives of the least developed countries;

3. Encourages also States, competent United Nations organs, subsidiary organs, programmes and specialized agencies, including the International Court of Justice, the International Law Commission and the Secretariat, other international organizations, non-governmental organizations, groups and individuals:

(a) To continue to contribute to the discussions on the themes of the commemoration of the centennial of the First International Peace Conference on the basis of the preliminary reports;

(b) To consider participation in the activities envisaged in the programme of action and to contribute to work towards meaningful conclusions of the debates on the themes of the centennial of the International Peace Conference;

5. Requests the Secretary-General to ensure consistency between the activities of the Organization relating to the closing of the United Nations Decade of International Law those relating to the programme of action and to coordinate with the Governments of the Netherlands and the Russian Federation his efforts with regard to the closing of the United Nations Decade of International Law;

6. Invites the Secretary-General to consider any activities to promote the outcome of the United Nations Decade of International Law, including the possibility of the releasing by the United Nations of a set of jubilee postage stamps and post cards in commemoration of the centennial of the first International Peace Conference;
